

PHILADELPHIA STYLE

July/august 2008

Chef Michael Schulson is the latest to gain a crop of talent at The Borgata in Atlantic City.

HOTTEST CHEFS

The Borgata Hotel Casino & Spa (1 Borgata Way, Atlantic City, 609-317-1000, TheBorgata.com) boasts seven fine-dining spots, including four created by internationally known culinary masters. Chef Bobby Flay owns six restaurants, but Bobby Flay Steak at The Borgata is his first to focus solely on serving a great American Kobe or filet mignon. The finely tuned seafood plates at Michael Mina's Sealife reflect the talent that won Mina a two-star Michelin rating at his San Francisco eatery, and Wolfgang Puck American Galle was opened by the man who quite literally catered to the stars when cooking for the official party of the Academy Awards. The newest addition to this tasty list is Michael Schulson's Izakaya, a hip haven for sushi lovers.